PLANS TO INCREASE CITY WATER SUPPLY

At the meeting of the City Council last Monday evening, Mayor H. H. Smith presided and all Councilmen were present except H. Sundermann, who was reported sick.

A request from the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to change some guy wires at the City Park was granted.

A request for a new carburetor to be installed on Company No. 2's truck was made by the Fire Commissioners, and the request was granted.

A notice from the Stewart S. Smith Company, changing the payments on our street sweeper to the Elgin Company was accepted.

A blasting permit was granted to the Market Street Railway Company, after the required bond had been inspected by the city attorney.

The light committee stated that they hoped to make a favorable report on the trouble man for our city, to be supplied by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, by next meeting.

The Park committee reported the work in the City Park progressing satisfactorily.

On report of the water engineer, the three lots in the lower end of the Metropolis Tract were ordered purchased. This will add greatly to our water supply. Tests have been made there, and an abundance of water can be had on this property.

The uniform traffic ordinance was laid over until next meeting, in order to compare it with the laws of other peninsula cities.

The new license ordinance, which will place a penalty for non-payment of city licenses, was read for the first time.

The bids on unfinished sidewalks in the West End were opened and, as the city engineer wanted some time to compare the different items, the Council ordered the four lowest bids to be held, with their bonds. These bidders are Stura Bros., Bay Concrete Company, G. W. Cushing and B. Milano.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on January 28.

YOUTHFUL COUPLE ARE NOW HAPPY

"And they lived happily ever after," as the story books say. At least, Charles Du Val and his bride, formerly Mabel Leggettt, are free to enjoy their honeymoon, and they expect to live hapily ever after.

But for a few days they had been unable to see the silver lining of the clouds. The young bride, whose home was in Daly City, was arrested last Monday night on a warrant sworn out by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leggett, of 171 Vista Grande avenue, Daly City, who claimed that she had eloped with Du Val, and that she was only 17.

Last Wednesday, however, Judge George H. Buck, of Redwood City, dismissed the charges of "running away and getting married" against the girl and permitted her to rejoin her husband, Charles Du Val, Jr., of San Francisco.

There was a reconciliation when the girl's mother apeared before Judge Buck and declared that she wanted her girl to be happy and requested that the charges be dismissed, following which the mother and daughter embraced, the case was dismissed, and now all concerned are happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Du Val, Sr., witnessed the wedding of the couple and approved it. They also battled valiantly to have the bride released from custody.

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

"The Great Commission" is the topic of the pastor's message next Sunday evening at the church service, at 8 o'clock. At the Sunday school the contest betwen reds and blues continues and creates considerable interest as it approaches the finish. Two more Sundays to go and the victors will be determined. We invite all who will to visit and join the Sunday school—adults, young folks and children. The lessons this quarter are on "Great Truths of the Christian Faith." The Christian Endeavorers are making plans to capture a banner at the coming convention of the Golden Gate Union.

Now that the season of illness is mostly over among young and old let us rally to all these services of the church with full attendance and hearty interest. Strangers are especially invited and there is a welcome for all.

CALVARY BAPTIST MISSION

1014 Huron Street.

On January 20, services will be held in our new location at the corner of Laura avenue and Mission street. Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Morning service at 11 o'clock. Evening service at 8 o'clock. Services will be conducted by Rev. W. D. Holt, during the absence of our pastor, A. C. Mintz.

BOY SCOUTS DISCUSS PROGRAM FOR YEAR

The troop committee and officers of Troop No. 149, Boy Scouts of Daly City, met Tuesday evening at Councilman A. J. Bodien's residence, to lay out a program for the year.

Many things were discussed, and the future looks bright for the boys. This troop is now open to all boys in our city over 12 years of age. Meetings are held every Friday evening at Company No. 5 fire house on Bellevue avenue.

Prepare your boy for the future by enrolling him in one of America's best organizations, that strives to make better citizens of our young men.

SCOUT LEADERS MAKE APPEAL FOR MEMBERS

Troop 149 is very glad to state that Daly City has responded to the appeal for Boy Scout recruits. During the last two weeks six boys have been attached to the troop, and we are proud to say that the boys are of the highest caliber desired. The troop is very confident that Daly City will soon have one of the leading troops of San Mateo county.

Scouting is an important factor in the moulding of a boy's character. It is at the troop that the boy meets friends that will stand as monuments to friendship throughout his life; it is there he associates with boys of excellent morals. He learns obedience, the care of his body, leadership, kindness and numerous other important rungs in the ladder of a good life.

Very many people have been influenced to have false opinions of Scouting; that it is only nonsense. However, we of Troop 149 will be glad at any time to reveal the true spirit of Scouting, and why millions of boys are combined in the great movement of advancing the intelligent American youth, so that the boys who will be the men of tomorrow will be able to guide their country for the good of humanity.

We renew our appeal for more boys, as we have not our full troup as yet, which is thirty-two.

CHESTER SMITH,
Scoutmaster.
CARL REBOCK, JR.
Assistant Scoutmaster.

METHODIST MEN WILL ENTERTAIN

Friday night will be a big night at the Methodist church, when the men of the church will present a program for the delectation of the members and friends of the church. Mr. Earl Ross has charge of the program and has provided a list of features that will meet the approval of the most particular. The novel part of the entertainment will be the simulation of radio broadcasting of each number of the program, on station F O G. Among other numbers there will be several solos—the goodly Scotch and sentimental ballads—by Mr. McGregor, accompanied by Mr. Broom. A baritone soloist from Berkeley, Mr. Claude Argal, is also expected. For the children there will be "Bedtime Stories by Uncle Osborne." Following the program there will be a social hour with games. Refreshments will complete the evening.

JEFFERSON HIGH SCHOOL RECEIVES MAJESTIC RADIO

A new 7 tube Majestic radio has been donated to the Jefferson Union high school by a friend of the school, who wishes his name withheld.

The radio was presented to the student body at an assembly Monday morning by Mr. Ferguson. A short musical program was held then, and the instrument is now being used for dancing in the auditorium at noon.

This model of radio is valued at more than two hundred dollars, and according to Mr. Miller is the latest and best radio made. It has a power speaker which is the latest improvement in radio.

In order that the school show its appreciation it was decided that each student write a letter of thanks to the donor of the radio in care of Mayor H. H. Smith.

TWO STATE TAX LAWS ATTACKED

The state gasoline tax law and the highway tax law are to be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court. The gas tax law will come before the tribunal on an appeal by George B. Williams and others of Los Angeles, holding that the law is illegal discrimination because it provides a refund for those using gas for other purposes than an automobile.

Bekins Van Lines, Inc., are the petitioners on the highway tax law, holding that the assessment of 5 per cent on their gross revenue is class legislation because it discriminates between different kinds of carriers.

The First Weeks Are the Easiest

MANY CHANGES IN LAWS SUGGESTED

A number of measures have been or will be introduced at the present session of the state legislature, seeking to change present laws.

A direct vote of the people on defacement of California scenic highways by advertising bill boards is demanded in one measure. Amendment of the constitution allowing the legislature to restrict and control alvertising structures along the highways is proposed by Assemblyman R. R. Ingels of Ukiah. That restriction, he declares, would affect both state and county roads and would apply to private property adjoining the highways as well as to public right of way holdings.

For the sake of the development of aviation in California, San Francisco and other cities should oppose two bills offered in the legislature providing control of the industry, Supervisor Milo F. Kent declares. One of the bills provides for control of air transportation business by the California Railroad Commission; and the other clothes the State Motor Vehicle Department with licensing of pilots and planes and control of airports.

In line with Governor Young's message urging study in the needs of constitutional revision, Assemblymen Z. L. Leymel of Fresno and Frank B. Collier of Modesto have started action looking to a new state constitution. They have proposed a resolution calling for vote of the people on the question of a convention to "prepare a constitution meeting present-day conditions."

California war veterans have presented their legislative program, which includes a proposed $20,000,000 bond issue for the continuation of state aid to former service men in purchasing homes. Governor Young's reorganization bill creating a new state department of military and veterans' affairs has also been approved by the veterans.

Abolition of the motor vehicle speed limit on California highways is proposed by Assemblyman Keaton of Long Beach, who would repeal the present provisions for a speed limit of 40 miles an hour on the open road, thus requiring traffic officers, he says, to concentrate on the actual crime of reckless driving.

To preserve the beaches of California from private exploitation as against public use is the purpose of a bill introduced by Senator Arthur H. Breed and backed by the State Department of Natural Resources. The bill would empower the state to set aside scenic areas on the beaches. Senator Breed has also introduced a bill to authorize the State Park Commission to take over park projects within incorporated cities.

Abolishing county control of traffic officers and substituting therefor a state traffic patrol under civil service are proposed amendments to the state motor vehicle act. Imposition of heavier penalties on drug addicts or intoxicated persons who drive, general tightening of enforcement laws, and definition of weight and speed restrictions applying to trucks, are important changes in the measure proposed.

LOW NUMBER AUTOS MUST OBSERVE LAWS

Warning to all state traffic officers to treat infractions of traffic rules by drivers of low number cars as others has been sent out by Colonel Frank G. Snook, chief of the motor vehicle division. The action was taken, Snook said, as the result of reports that immunity against punishment had been granted owners of cars accorded license plates low in numeral rating.

"This type of plate carries with it no special privilege or courtesies not extended to every motorist," Snook's order read.

SAN MATEO BRIDGE TO OPEN MARCH 1

With construction now about 130 days ahead of schedule, and nearly 95 per cent of the structure complete, the San Francisco Bay toll bridge connecting San Mateo and Alameda counties will be dedicated and placed in commission probably March 1.

Dedication of the bridge, the longest highway bridge in the world, measuring more than seven miles from shore to shore and costing $7,500,000, will coincide with the fixing in place of the 303 foot central lift span bridging the ship channel.

It is expected that an appropriate program will be planned for the opening ceremonies, which will be attended by civic leaders from both San Mateo and Alameda counties.

PICTURES AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

President-elect Hoover's recent trip to South American countries has aroused great public interest among the people of the United States in the nations south of the Panama Canal. To inform the people of Daly City concerning this part of the world which is so close to us and yet so little known, the pastor of the Methodist church, the Rev. George Woodall, next Sunday evening will present a lecture, illustrated with seventy pictures, on the subject "South America —Continent of Opportunity."

The lecture will afford a general description of the country and people, and outline the missionary work of the Methodist church in South America.

EIGHT Y. M. C. A. BOYS GET MEDAL AWARD

Eight San Mateo county boys have been named by the Y. M. C. A. honor committee to receive the highest award of the Y. M. C. A. younger boys' program. They are from Burlingame, Millbrae and South San Francisco, and have completed every test of the three-year Pioneer program, having filled their bronze, silver and gold buttons with notches.

The tests, which have just been completed, are four-fold in nature, rating a boy's relationships in school, home, church and community. The physical tests passed are in athletics, hiking, camping, etc. The mental or intellectual tests are in outside reading and in school accomplishments. The service tests are in the home and community service. The devotional tests are in reverence and Christian attitudes in relationships with others.

MARIN COUNTY FACES LOSS OF SCHOOL CONTROL

Marin county faces the possibility of losing control of its elementary and high schools, if the County Unit school plan to be sponsored by William John Cooper, state superintendent of schools, becomes a law, according to James B. Davidson, county superintendent. Under the terms of the proposed measure, according to Davidson, the Tamalpais Union high school at Mill Valley is the only one in the county with a sufficient attendance to retain its standing as a separate district. Under the new plan, Davidson declares, the county superintendent would lose considerable authority with the possibility of losing control of the entire county system, and eventually be eliminated.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cosbie, of Bellevue avenue, entertained a group of friends last Saturday evening. Whist was enjoyed during the evening, after which refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. E. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. G. Pholey, Mr. and Mrs. R. Schultz and Mr. R. Horn.

DALY CITY BOWLER SHOWS CLASS IN PIN SMASHING

Al Studinger, Daly City's entry in the San Francisco Examiner's bowling tournament for the Durant Four, let it be known that he will be well up among the finalists by his display of pin smashing at the Golden Gate Recreation alleys one night last week. Mr. Studinger topped a good field by tumbling 648 pins in three games. His friends in this section are pulling for him, and expect him to make all the other bowlers go some if they head him off in the finals.

SUPERVISORS FAVOR ENTRY OF NEW ROAD

The San Mateo county board of supervisors by unanimous vote last Monday endorsed the resolution of thirty-two civic bodies and municipalities favoring the Western Pacific's application for a railroad line between San Francisco and Redwood City.

This resolution was presented before the San Francisco board of supervisors and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday afternoon by the San Mateo county committee as "reflecting the sentiment of everybody on the peninsula."

Charles Holt, a member of the committee appointed at the breakfast meeting held in San Mateo recently, presented the resolution to the board for its adoption.

Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey made the motion to endorse the proposed railway, and Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown seconded it.

Protests against the street assessments in Lomita Park were received by the board from the Market Street Railway Company and E. J. Maffi. Maffi said the board should not accept the new streets until necessary repairs had been completed. The Market Street Railway Company protested the street paving costs along its right of way, the entire length of the park, and asked that the board provide for a difference between state and county taxes. The board continued the protest until next meeting.

John Gill, superintendent of schools of Redwood City, was named to succeed Roy W. Cloud as a member of the county board education. Mr. Cloud had submitted his resignation to County Superintendent Pansy J. Abott because his duties as financial secretary of the California Teachers' Association made it impossible for him to devote his time to the work of the local education body.

Mrs. Frances Kyne, of Moss Beach, and Mrs. Joseph Altieri, of Colma, were named members of the county social service commission, to succeed Mrs. Ben Griffith, of Half Moon Bay, and Mrs. F. L. Lawry, of Burlingame, whose terms expired this month. Mrs. McCormick, of Pescadero, and Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey were renamed to the commission by the county supervisors.

The Redwood City Tribune was named the official organ of the county supervisors for the year.

COUNTY FARES WELL IN HIGHWAY BUDGET

Extension of the Bay Shore highway from San Mateo to Palo Alto is provided for in Governor Young's $55,000,000 highway budget for the next two years, of which more than $1,500,000 will be spent in San Mateo county, the legislature has been informed.

In reporting the greatest bi-ennial highway building program in the history of the state, Governor Young listed projects in San Mateo county for a total of $1,678,940, including extension of the Skyline boulevard and widening of the Colma viaduct, building of three bridges and a grade separation at Dumbarton, all in addition to the extension of the Bay Shore road to the north limits of Palo Alto.

The largest single item of $815,000 provides for the 7.4 mile extension of the Bay Shore highway to Redwood City. The next largest, amounting to $500,000, is for extending the highway to the Embarcadero road at Palo Alto and an additional $55,000 is provided to bridge San Francisquito creek on this route.

Grade separation at Dumbarton is listed at $120,000, and $85,000 is provided for a bridge over Redwood slough. The 13 miles improvement on the Skyline road is listed at $17,940, and there is $60,000 provided for the Colma improvement. Widening of the bridge over San Francisquito creek just south of Menlo Park is included in the budget at a cost of $20,000, and there is $6,000 for the extension of the Bay Shore to the south limits of San Mateo where it connects with the Redwood City unit.

Officer Honored by Re-election

Landini, of Daly City, was re-elected president for the 1929 term, the members deciding that her sucessful conduct of the affairs of the organization deserved her retention for another term.

Score another for Ben Franklin, printer, first to harness electricity, philosopher, statesman and patriot. He also introduced the broom to America. An old diary discloses that he received from a woman friend in India a small broom which had seeds on its stalks. Franklin planted the seeds, raised broomcorn and encouraged his friends to start the broom industry in New England. And in spite of carpet sweepers and vacuum cleaners, the United States used more than fifty million brooms last year.

If you have ever been fingerprinted, watch your step. John Newland, aged 35, arrested recently in Newark for stealing a 50 cent necktie, was found by an examination of his finger-prints to be wanted for the murder of his brother-in-law in Buffalo several months ago. Newland said he stole the necktie in order to get into a warm jail for the winter.

Religious frenzy caused an unidentified man to ring the bell and then jump to his death from the tower of a church in San Angel, Mexico. Before taking the fatal leap he cried to the crowd below: "This is the day of Our Lady Guadaloupe. I wish to make a sacrifice in her honor.

The woman who invented the doctrin of alimony might envy Mrs. Bessie Arnold of New York. Bessie was recently awarded alimony in the sum of $33,333.33 a year, which her husband, a broker, has been ordered to pay.

A current magazine publishes a girlish statement contained in the early diary of Peggy Joyce, who has married nearly everybody: "As a matter of fact, I shall never marry, because all men do is deceive their wives." Which illustrates the saying that a lady always has the right to change her mind and generally does.

One lone woman broke up a football play at Chico, Cal., just as the ball was snapped. She was an aviatrix making a forced landing by parachute and lit in the midst of the scrimmage, the ropes of the 'chute entangling the players. Although decidedly "off side," she was not penalized.

Louis Clernt, serving a 15 year sentence for bank robbery in the penitentiary at Lincoln, Neb., is said to have invented an appparatus for the elimination of static from radio receiving sets. If his device will really work, he ought to be given the bank-robbing franchise for the whole state.

An Edwardsville, Indiana, jury awarded Carl Johnson $5,000 as damages for injuries received in an automobile accident, then added $125 for the replacement of a splintered leg—a wooden one. The defendant would probably have had to pay more if a real leg had been splintered.

A news company of Columbus, Ohio, has refused an offer of $300 for a newspaper which originally sold for three cents. It is a copy of the New York World of April 15, 1865, containing the story of Lincoln's assassination.

John D. Clark, millionaire oil man of Chicago, quit business and entered John Hopkins University to fit himself for a teaching career. Some will say he should have had his head examined by the medical department first.

C. Emory Titman, of Philadelphia, who died recently, lived several years in poverty because he took a doctor's advice too seriously. Fifteen years ago, just after Titman had received a legacy of $250,000, the doctor told him he had less than a year to live, so he proceeded to spend the whole fortune as rapidly as possible. He was soon broke, but got well and worked for low wages the rest of his life.

Spectators in the recorder's court at Montreal were surprised one day last week when the clerk shouted "Merry Christmas." No reference was being made to the annual holiday, however, as Mary Christmas was the real name of a defendant whom the clerk was calling before the bar of justice, charged with being intoxicated on the street.

Hiram S. Brown, formerly president of a big leather concern, has been chosen president of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation. Probably his selection was based on the theory that the head of an amusement enterprise should have had experience with tough skins.

Spurgeon Cowart, in an Atlanta jail for drunkenness, fired several revolver shots at random because he was not permitted to use a telephone. There's no telling what he might have done if he had gotten the wrong number.

Another contribution to the government's "conscience fund" in the sum of $100 was recently sent in an envelope postmarked Lexington, Ky. Possibly the fellow had won some money on the election and felt ashamed to keep it.

If the poet who sang of the purple cow were to visit Westchester county, New York, he'd be surprised Farmers of that county have painted their cows bright green with red stripes, in order that hunters may not mistake them for deer.

Captain Stiles, specialist at the Army hospital in Denver, removed his own tonsils. A most unethical proceeding, on a par with that of a barber who shaves himself with a safety razor.

Harold's Mother Knew Answer

"Yes, sir, I am certainly proud of my little boy," says Mrs. H. M. Smith, 421 Topeka Ave., Topeka, Kansas. "He's five and weighs fifty-seven pounds. He's the picture of health as you can see, and I feel like he'll always be that way as long as I can get California Fig Syrup. I have used it with him ever since he was a year old. I knew what to give him for his colds and his feverish, upset spells because Mother used California Fig Syrup with all of us as children. I have used it freely with my boy and he loves it. It always fixes him up, quick."

In many homes, like this, the third and fourth generations are using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup because it has never failed to do what is expected of it. Nothing so quickly and thoroughly purges a child's system of the souring waste which keeps him cross, feverish, headachy, bilious, half-sick, with coated tongue, bad breath and no appetite or energy as long as it is allowed to remain in the little stomach and bowels. Fig Syrup gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act as Nature intends them to do, and helps build up and strengthen weak, pale and underweight children. Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. The genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years, always bears the word "California."

"A Friend Told Me!"

Says Mr. Powell:

(Now His Health is Restored)

"I AM a circus clown and about two years ago began to have severe attacks of indigestion — I thought I would have to give up. I lost weight and my appetite was bad." [Anyone who has suffered attacks of indigestion can understand just how Mr. Powell felt.] "A friend told me about PE-RU-NA, so I bought a bottle and started taking it. I have now taken three bottles. My health is restored and my work a pleasure." [For over 50 years, PE-RU-NA has been the key to a renewed health and vitality for hundreds of thousands.] "An earnest desire to help others prompts me to make this statement." [Signed: Albert Powell, Louisville, Ky.] [A PE-RU-NA user is always a PE-RU-NA friend—thousands recommend it to others. All druggists have it; get a bottle today.]

City Holds Tercentenary

In celebration of its 300 years of existence as a royal burgh, the ancient city of Dornoch, Scotland, recently held a descriptive pageant and other festivities. A reproduction of the blessing of the fishermen's nets by an abbey of the Sixth century, a re-enacting of the Battle of Embo in the Eleventh century, and a repulse of the pillaging Danes by William, earl of Sutherland, were among the many tableaux. In the last of these the role of the Danish leader was played by the duchess of Sutherland. Other notables who took part included Lady Londonderry, Lady Ednam, Lord Chaplin, and Miss Elizabeth Leveson-Gower, who is the daughter of the present heir to the dukedom of Sutherland.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

Roads From Rubbish

Salt Lake City has splendid roads that have been built of rubbish. The material is leveled by means of a drag—stoves, baby carriages, bedsteads, etc., being placed by hand.

The dump is then rolled with a 15-ton steel roller, which so smashes everything that it packs even more easily than dirt as a foundation for a screened gravel surface.

The real wit has little to say, but makes that little tell.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys If Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

"I know that man— that is exactly the way he talks"

SHE was listening to a demonstration of an Atwater Kent. Turning the FULL-VISION Dial from one station to another, suddenly she heard the voice of a friend she had not seen for years. She listened eagerly. It was "exactly the way he talked."

"I'll take the set," she said. "This radio tells the truth."

Anyone can convince himself that Atwater Kent receivers and speakers do give faithful reproduction. Listen to an orchestra and pick out the individual instruments. Each has its own character—its own identity.

Turn to a male quartet, a piano solo, a radio drama with all the varying voices and inflections—or to the President when he speaks. Every sound is true to the original. That is the standard of Atwater Kent performance.

Atwater Kent gives it to you for less money. Less money because Atwater Kent Radio is manufactured in great quantities, making economies of production possible. Yet this huge output does not affect quality in the slightest. For every set, besides being made of the finest materials, has to pass 222 tests or inspections in the course of manufacture.

Turn the FULL-VISION Dial and listen to "the radio that tells the truth."

Important Matter

"The police say you'll have to clothe the show."

"Be careful now. Clothe or close?"

Dogs Made "News"

Two dogs made page one at Sweetwater, Texas. In the first instance, a doctor, making a call at 1:30 in the morning, was forced to stop his car by a dog which refused to move from the road. At the side of the road, a few feet away, was the dog's charge, a shivering, crying baby girl of eighteen months. The other dog was found standing guard over the unconscious form of its master on the ground beside his car.

For Colds —

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsilitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

EDISON THE WIZARD

Thomas A. Edison, the "wizard of Menlo Park," will shortly celebrate his eighty-second birthday, yet he appears to be in full possession of the wonderful mental powers which have been the marvel of his contemporaries. It is worthy of note that in his biography in "Who's Who in America" his educational career is confined to the simple statement that he "received some instruction from his mother."

No diplomas, no college degrees, no prizes for scholarship in his early years. In later life, however, many colleges and universities have honored themselves by conferring honorary degrees in philosophy, science and law, after he had made his own way to fame and stood in no need of formal scholastic recognition.

In a recent celebration in his honor, broadcast by radio to every state, his achievements were praised by President Coolidge and other prominent Americans. On that occasion, Secretary Mellon said: "In the space of a single lifetime he has changed the conditions under which men live."

Mr. Edison has obtained patents for more than 1,000 inventions, the two most epoch-making being the phonograph and the incandescent electric light bulb. His genius has made possible great industries which have contributed immeasurably to the joy and comfort of mankind. His infulence upon civilization can hardly be appreciated.

In paying deserved trbute to his greatness it should always be borne in mind that as a boy he "received some instruction from his mother."

WITCHCRAFT IN 1929

Recent news reports of "witchraft murders" in Pennsylvania and Virginia, in which the victims were killed because they were supposed to be exerting evil influences upon their neighbrs, have again brought to light the unbelievable prevalence of superstition in this land of boasted civilization.

Investigation pursued in consequence of these killings have revealed that in certain sections the belief in witchcraft and magic is as common as that which prevailed during medieval times in Europe, or among African natives of the present.

One of the murders recently committed was in order to obtain possession of a "magic book," in which was printed: Whoever carries this book is safe from all enemies; can not die, nor be drowned in any water, nor burn in any fire," and so on.

It is estimated that in the United States not less than 20,000 professional "priests and priestesses" of voodoism, fortune-telling, and other charlantanry make a living by playing upon the ignorance and credulity of superstitious people. They even number among their dupes many persons of wealth, education and social prestige. There is no accounting for how they get that way.

But, the fact remains that in this good year 1929, America is a land of automobiles, airplanes, radio—and belief in witchcraft.

BILLIONS IN GIFTS

American captains of business and industry donated sums estimated to total $2,330,600,000 to religious, educational and charitable enterprises during the year 1928.

The donors of this vast sum made their great fortunes in oil, coal, steel, public utilities, manufacturing, banking, and other activities popularly known as big business. The largest gift of the year was from the estate of the late Payne Whitney, who left more than $45,000,000 to hospitals, libraries and universities.

Many millions were distributed by the Rockefeller fundation, including gifts to several foreign medical and research organizations. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave $5,000,000 for restoring the historical town of Williamsburg, Virginia, to its appearance of Revolutionary days. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation gave $5,000,000 for developing Great Smoky Mountain National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Among other donations to causes having a human appeal was one of $500,000 given by John Markle, retired coal operator, to the Salvation Army for a working girls' hotel. Another was $500,000 from Milton McQuaid to an orphanage in Newburgh, New York.

These are only a few of the benefactions of the past year, but they serve to illustrate the growing tendency of rich men to devote large portions of their wealth to educational and humanitarian purposes, thus contributing immensely to the advance of civilization.

FEWER LYNCHINGS

Records compiled by the Tuskegee Institute show ten lynchings in the United States during the year 1928, compared with sixteen for 1927, thirty for 1926, seventeen for 1925, sixteen for 1924, thirty-three for 1923, and fifty-seven for 1922.

While the number for 1928 was the smallest ever recorded since accurate records have been kept, it was just ten too many. In one of the cases at least, it was afterwards proved that the man lynched was innocent of the crime for which he was killed.

Of the ten lynchings in 1928, all but one were negroes —the other being a Mexican. The states involved were: Mississippi, 4; Louisiana, 2; Texas, 2; Missouri, 1; New Mexico, 1.

Every right-minded person deplores lynching under any circumstances, and it is gratifying to note that this crime has greatly decreased in recent years. In the year 1892 lynching reached its highest point, with the frightful total of 255 persons put to death outside the law, of whom 100 were whites and 155 were negroes. As late as 1908 there were 100 persons lynched in a single year.

Education, an aroused public sentiment against lynching, and better protection afforded prisoners by law officers have served to greatly reduce this evil. It is to be hoped that civilization may soon stamp out altogether. Better that a few criminals should go free than that one innocent man should suffer torture and death at the hands of a crazed and blood-thirsty mob.

ROAD PROBLEM SERIOUS

One of the outstanding problems of the present and future is that of providing suitable highways for the ever increasing traffic. This problem has many angles, all of which present difficulties challenging the best thought of officials and citizens.

In spite of the great increase in mileage of improved roads, it seems that only a beginning has been made, if all communities and the rural districts are to be provided with hard-surfaced highways. Roads already improved are in many cases found too narrow to accommodate the traffic. The growth of the bus business, with larger and heavier vehicles, presents another feature of the problem which must be reckoned with.

All these facts point to the necessity for careful planning for the future, particularly in securing right-of-ways of sufficient width to permit widening of roads as circumstances require, and in building firm foundations capable of sustaining the heavier traffic which may be expected.

Officials in charge of highway construction have a highly difficult and responsible task. The manner in which that task is performed will have an important bearing on the welfare of present and future generations.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY

In our admiration for the wonderful mechanical developments of recent years, we sometimes overlook the part which science, and particularly chemistry, has played in supplying the new materials which have made a solution of these mechanical problems possible.

Some of the industrial accomplishments which chemistry has aided during the last decade are pointed out in an article written by Dr. Harrison E. Howe, a noted chemist and editor, for the fiftieth anniversary edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

By improved chemical preparation of paper pulp to give it greater strength, a sheet of newsprint paper nearly 300 inches wide can be produced at the speed of 1,000 feet a minute.

A new glass developed in the laboratory can be machine-blown into incandescent lamp bulbs with amazing rapidity, one machine now in operation having a capacity of about 400,000 bulbs in twenty-four hours. A number of machines make around 25,000 each per day.

Through better methods of compounding and curing rubber the life of an automobile tire is ten times as long as it was a few years ago, while new sources of rubber or its equivalent are being developed.

The rapidly growing rayon industry, the innumerable useful products derived from coal tar, new metal alloys, new fuels, new foods and a multitude of other products unknown some years ago, all had their birth in the laboratory. As Dr. Howe says in concluding his article:

"The growing appreciation for research and the increased support for fundamental scientific work in America gives great promise of future discoveries that will be vital in prologing life, in preventing famine, in minimizing disease and in maintaining civilization at a satisfactory level."

In answer to a reader's inquiry, a newspaper confides that a horned toad does not lay eggs. And, really, we see no good reason why it should.

A press dispatch from Washington says a dry drive is to be made in Kansas City. The boys will be glad to have this advance information.

A late invention is a "radio traffic cop." Being a machine, it may work.

It looks as though the French cabinet is going to relapse into its old habit.

Modern martyrs also bear publicity with becoming fortitude.

GRANADA PLAYERS WILL PRESENT "CYCLONE SALLY"

Patrons of the Daly City Theatre have a rare treat in store on the night of January 24, when the Granada Players present the laugh-provoking three act comedy, "Cyclone Sally.'

This new and extremely funny farce comes to the Daly City Theatre direct from a tour of the United States, in which it played every large city in the country. It will mark the first legitimate stage play to be produced in this city, and fulfills the promise of the Daly City Theatre management to give its patrons the greatest variety of entertainment at the lowest possible prices.

For laughing purposes and good entertainment, "Cyclone Sally" is a riot. There is not a dull moment from the first curtain to the last. Eastern critics state there is no funnier play on the stage today, and the management of the Daly City Theatre feels justly proud it was able to secure an engagement from the Granada Players, now enroute Los Angeles.

Miss Laura Lane, who plays the title role in "Cyclone Sally," is one of Broadway's most talented and most beautiful actresses. She is supported in this play by Charles H. Courter, Percy Hutchings, Herman Schoenig, Ada Roberts, Dolphine Martin, Lorene Meadows, Evelyn Gilbert, Thomas Branson and others.

Due to the fact that "Cyclone Sally" will play the Daly City Theatre but one night, patrons are urged to secure their seats well in advance. Capacity houses have greeted the laugh-provoking comedy throughout the country.

THREE THOUSAND ENROLLED IN RED CROSS ACTIVITIES

The twelfth annual roll call of San Mateo county chapter, Red Cross, on which final reports have been issued, brought a total of $8,861.21 to the chapter with the renewal of more than 3,000 memberships. The chapter will retain $7,012.46 for work here.

Thanks to the newspapers and the volunteer workers is expressed by Miss Helen P. Chesebrough, vice-chairman of the chapter, who reported totals for San Mateo county cities as follows: Belmont, $101; Burlingame, $1,346.19; North Burlingame, $606; Colma, $44.50; Daly City, $174.09; Half Moon Bay, $65; Hillsborough, $4,126.45; Lomita Park, $93.17; Millbrae, $88.15; Moss Beach, $2; Pecadero, $91.50; San Bruno, $108.52; San Carlos, $40; Salada Beach, $5; San Mateo, $1,918.30; Filoli Estate, $32; La Honda, $14; Montara, $18; El Granada, $2; Purissima, $3.34; Tunis, $2.

SAN MATEO SCHOOL BOY DIES ON HEALTH VOYAGE

Newton DeWolf Riddell, one of the most popular students of the San Mateo county high school and captain of the San Mateo county Boy Scout band, has lost the long fight against failing health which sent him on a voyage to Australia. His death from heart failure aboard the liner Sonoma, enroute to San Francisco, was reported last Tuesday. The ship docked yesterday, and the funeral will be held tomorrow.

"ON TRIAL" MAKES HIT AT THE EMBASSY THEATRE

"On Trial," the fourth Warner Brothers all talking picture is now firmly entrenched at the Embassy Theatre, San Francisco, as one of the major successes of the season. Produced on the Vitaphone, this erstwhile stage thriller has been faithfully brought to the screen and is acted by a distinguished cast which would add lustre to any story. Pauline Frederick, one of San Francisco's best loved actresses, is the star. The remainder of the cast includes a long list of favtorites who have mostly played in San Francisco on the stage in past seasons, Edmund Breese, Richard Tucker, Franklin Pangborn, Holmes Herbert and little Vondell Darr being among these.

STAGE ATTRACTIONS OF MERIT BOOKED FOR EARLY SHOWING AT THE DALY CITY THEATRE

With the one big thought in mind to be ever on the alert for real stage attractions of merit to play the Daly City Theatre, the management of this popular playhouse have secured Freddie Nelson and his Sunshine Girls in a series of musical comedies to play every Sunday. Associated with Mr. Nelson will be found such artists as Buddy Clarke, famous comedian, star of "Kongo," which recently had an extended run at the Capitol Theatre, San Francisco, Harry Kirby, a character comedian of note, Peggy Taylor, ballet mistress, Dorothy Ray, who besides being a clever comedienne herself, holds the distiction of being the cousin of the renowned Charles Ray of the pictures. There will be a specialty dancing chorus of six well trained and handpicked girls from the cast of "Castles in the Air," and all of the shows will be from Scrip. This attraction is now playing seven single day runs in Northern California, and are meeting with instantaneous success wherever they play. Daly City, we are sure, will welcome them with open arms, for we are sure there is room here for a real high class legitimate musical comedy company. There will be as always a delightful film program on the same bill, and for the opening Sunday the management has booked Ralph Graves in a slashing comedy drama of a rich man's son, called "The Swell Head," that is good for a full hour of screaming laughter.

For Monday the Daly City will offer Jean Hesholt in "Jazz Mad," a story full of love, youth, pep and drama. Al St. John will furnish the comedy with "Racing Mad."

Richard Barthelmess will be the Tuesday film attraction in "Wheel of Chance," said to be the best work of this popular young man on the screen. On the same bill there will be a Barrel of Fun Night, with Hermie Rose as the master of ceremony.

For Wednesday the Daly City will offer the return engagement of the ever popular Frellson Dancing Juveniles, together with George Bancroft, Evelyn Brent and William Powell in "The Dragnet."

For Thursday the Daly City will offer the Granada Players in "Cyclone Sally," a screamingly funny farce in three acts. The curtain will rise promptly at 8:15, and a capacity house, judging by the advance ticket sale, will greet Laura Lane and her company in this the first of a series of legitimate attractions booked to the Daly City.

On Friday, Olive Borden will be the attraction in a massive thrill story, "The Albany Night Boat," while Jo Meyer and his gang of funsters will hold forth with the Kountry Store.

For Saturday there will be four big acts of vaudeville in addition to the picture play.

It's going to be a hard winter, particularly on a lot of lambs shorn in Wall Street.

ABOUT WOMEN

Mrs William Hoffman of Barrington, R. I., was recently elected national president of the Girl Scouts of America. Mrs. Herbert Hoover, former president, is now national vice-president.

After she had been chosen and crowned as queen of the Veiled Prophet's ball in St. Louis, it was discovered that "Miss" Mary Ambrose Smith had been secretly married some time before to Thomas Birdsall.

Miss Jean La Rene of Chicago made her first solo flight in an airplane after only nine hours of instruction at the municipal airport.

Miss Livia Marracci, 18-year-old actress, beauty prize winner and sculptor of New York, is carving a statuette of President-elect Hoover.

Mrs. Roger Babson, wife of the noted business and statistical expert, has endowed at Babson Park, Fla., the first school in the world to be operated without profit exclusively to teach women business.

Lady Heath, famed English aviatrix, who holds the world's altitude record for women and has flown alone from South Africa to England, was presented to the United States House of Representitives by Congressman Tilson on her recent visit to Washington, and was greeted with great applause.

Judge Florence E. Allen is about to begin her second six-year term as a member of the supreme court of Ohio. She was formerly a Democrat, and although Hover carried Ohio by about 700,000 majority, Judge Allen received 352,245 more votes than her nearest opponent.

Princess Ileana of Roumania, after a two-year course of instruction, passed the examination for first mate in the Navy of her country. She will not become an active sailor, however.

Miss Margaret Lambie of Washington, a graduate of Vasser College, has been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of the United States. She is a member of the bar in the District of Columbia and in the state of New York.

Mille. Maryse Bastie, France's foremost woman pilot, plans to start an airplane taxi service between Paris and Mediterranean pleasure resorts next spring.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Thelbert Richardson, 13-year-old Boy Scout of Wichita Falls, Tex., blew "taps" over the grave of his father, Dr. J. R. E. Richardson, in compliance with his parent's request.

Helen Norris, an invalid mountain girl living near Medford, Ore., has written several radio plays which have been produced by western stations.

Davy Lee, a new kid screen star playing with Al Jolson, is hailed as another Jackie Coogan.

Laddie Gray, 8-year-old pianist, recently played the accompaniments for his mother, a violin soloist, at a concert in Cincinnati.

Little Jackie Kouckel, 2, frequently enjoys rides on the back of a 300-year old turtle in the Bronx Park Zoo, New York.

Warner Simmons of Windfall, Ind., was recently awarded a gold honor medal for life saving, by the Boy Scouts' national court of honor.

Little Patsy Kelly, a child of the New York tenements, a few months ago got her chance to do a dance in a vaudeville show and is now featured in a high class musical production.

Joan Mannering Sanders, 14, is the youngest artist in England to have ever had a painting accepted at the Royal Academy.

Worth Nicholls, a schoolboy of Tulia, Tex., made enough money from two pure-bred Jersey cows to insure him a college education.

Agatha Robbins, a young girl of Trentham, Eng., although suffering from paralysis, studied in bed and won an Oxford scholarship.

During last year, pupils of 13,835 American schools deposited $26,005,138 in school savings banks and drew nearly a million dollars in interest.

A little London orphan girl, known only as "Paddy," placed for adoption by a London welfare organization, has been made heir to $25,000 by the will of a wealthy member of the peerage, who adopted her.

Clarence Goecke, 12-year-old club boy of State Center, Ia., won the grand championship of the world in Chicago with his Herford steer, "Dick"

Maybe there is a confirmed nature faker sending out those queer dispatches from Knoxville, Tenn. Last week he related that a child had been born there with a 7-inch tail; now it is the story of a man who is suing for divorce because his wife refused to accept money for three new dresses.

The RED LAMP

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

THE STORY

Events of the story as set forth in the journal of William A. Porter, professor of English literature:

The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died mysteriously at his home, Twin Hollows, now the professor's property. Jane, the professor's wife, is a psychic. With their niece, Edith, the Porters go to Twin Hollows for their vacation, despite Jane's reluctance. A letter Horace had been writing at the time of his death shows that he was interested in spiritualism. It hints of danger. A "red lamp" is mentioned. They take up their residence in the lodge, because of Jane's aversion to the house. Warren Halliday, in love with Edith, comes to live in the boathouse. A number of sheep are mysteriously killed in the vicinity. The slayer leaves a cabalistic sign at the scene of the killings. Greenough, a detective, arrives and Porter has a feeling that he is under suspicion. Twin Hollows is rented to an elderly, partially paralyzed man, Bethel, who, with his secretary, Gordon, takes possession. A youth, Carroway, on watch for the sheep killer, disappears. Porter has the red lamp hidden in a room of which he alone has the key, but many people, including the professor himself, believe they have seen its reflection at Twin Hollows. Halliday is mysteriously attacked and seriously injured.

"Well, if you can't see what's going on under your eyes, my dear—"

"I don't see why it shouldn't go on. There's not too much love in the world."

"Nor enough bread and cheese."

"We didn't have very much when we started, William," she said, looking up at me wistfully.

"And we haven't much more now," I said, and kissed her.

But the plain truth is that Jane's nerves are shaken. She wants Edith settled; she would like nothing better than a speedy marriage, if that would take us back to the city at once. All her old hatred and distrust of this place have been steadily reviving, and the attack on Halliday has about eaten away her resistance.

Later: Poor Carroway's body has been found. The tide was unusually low at two this afternoon and a yawl from Bass cove, crossing the bay, saw it floating face down, and recovered it, not without difficulty. The poor lad had been tied with the end of an anchor rope, and the anchor thrown over with him. Thus for days the body has been only a few feet beneath the surface, floating at the end of its tragic tether.

From the doctor, making his afternoon call here, we heard the details. He was summoned as soon as the body was brought in, and made a hasty examination. From that it appears that Carroway was beaten over the head first and then thrown into the sea.

"He was probably dead before he touched the water," is Hayward's opinion. "Of course the autopsy will tell that. If there is no water in the middle ear or the lungs, we can be certain."

But from Peter Geiss, who wandered in this afternoon after salvaging certain of his personal possessions from the sloop, we learned other facts. Thus, Peter declares that the man who killed Carroway was a sailor, or at least knew how to use a rope, sailor-fashion.

And as Halliday said to me, aside, this was cheering news, for my best friend could not accuse me of any nautical knowledge.

The body, it seems, was tied with two half-hitches around the wrists; from there the rope extended to the ankle, with similar half-hitches, and to these ends, again, the anchor had been affixed.

But, the recovery of the body has roused the neighborhood to fever heat. There have been those, up to now, who have half-believed that Carroway had been the victim of an accident; had somehow stumbled and fallen over board, and to prove this they brought out the fact that, like many of the men on the waterside, he could not swim.

There were others, too, who still inclined to the belief that some supernatural influence had been at work; that Carroway, indeed, had been the victim of some other-world foul play. But even these superstitious folk cannot now blame the red lamp. Carroway has been murdered, by hands which wielded the oar that struck him, and which tied the half-hitches.

The anchor presents the only possible clew, and that is a feeble one. There was no anchor in the boat Carroway took out. On the other hand, there is a sort of half-hearted recognition of it by Doctor Hayward as one stolen from his small knock-about sometime late in June.

"Of course, all these anchors are as like as peas," he said this afternoon, "but the boys down at the wharf say it's mine, and they can tell two fish-hooks apart, same size and same kind." . . .

The county authorities have finally roused themselves and the sheriff, Benchley, is in Oakville. Under the excuse of examining our float Greenough brought him out, and Halliday dressed and went with them, to show where he had found the knife. On their return they stopped in and looked at my car.

When Halliday came back he was grave and quiet. In vain did Edith try to coax him into his usual lightheartedness. While I have no idea as to what happened, I can make a fair guess, for he announced at supper that he was through playing the invalid.

"It's time for me to be up and about," he said.

Benchley has increased the county's reward to twenty-five hundred dollars, and this with Livingstone's makes three thousand. As a result, until twilight frightened them back to their hearths, the vicinity was filled this afternoon with amateur detectives. According to Annie Cochran, one of them was skulking around the hedge of the main house when Mr. Bethel saw him and drove him off.

Just what that irritable and exclusive gentleman makes of the situation, I do not know. He must have learned, through Gordon, of our trouble here, but he makes no sign.

He is so consistently unpleasant that one must respect it, as consistency of any sort is respected. . . .

My own position is rather strengthened than weakened by today's developments, and I imagine Greenough himself is somewhat at sea. Not only am I no sailor, and obviously no sailor, but I am not a physically muscular man. In the pursuit of English literature the wear and tear is on trouser seats rather than on muscles; in ten years my one annual physical orgy has been putting up the fly-screens each April.

I could no more strangle a man than I could bull-dog a steer.

And, unless Greenough is more beset with prejudices and theory than I think he is, he must know this. On only two points do I plead guilty, and there with reservations. For the murderer shows a knowledge of the countryside, not only equal to my own, but better. And Halliday says he got into the car as would a man of middle life, rather than youth. I am middle-aged—if that be not the next period just ahead and never quite reached, until some day we waken to find that we have passed it in the night and are now old, and taking an ingenuous pride in that age.

July 16.

I am facing an unusual quandary, which is: shall I or shall I not attend poor Carroway's funeral tomorrow?

There is an old theory—I would like to question Greenough about it, if I dared—that your true murderer has an avid curiosity as to the work of his hands; that, against all prudence, he returns to it. Under these circumstances, what shall I do?

Compromise, probably, send more flowers than I can afford, and stay at home. The same sort of compromise which I effected with my soul yesterday, when I gave Jane a rather larger amount than usual for the collection plate. . . .

The Recovery of the Body Has Roused the Neighborhood to Fever Heat.

One of the reporters who has been hanging around the vicinity since the recovery of the body approached me today on a possible connection between the murder and the attack on Halliday.

He pried me with polite questions, but I evaded him as well as I could.

"But don't you, personally, believe there is some connection?" he insisted.

"I imagine you know at least as much about it as I do. Have you found any?"

Perhaps my attitude had annoyed him, or perhaps he merely had the discoverer's pride in achievement, for he put away the handful of yellow paper on which he had made no notes, and smiled.

"I haven't found any connection," he said. "But I have found something your detectives missed, Mr. Porter. I have found where the fellow hid after the crash, when the other car was rescuing Mr. Halliday."

But the odd part of that discovery to my mind is not that hiding place, nor Greenough's failure to locate it. As a matter of fact, I doubt if Greenough has ever looked for it. He seems to have taken for granted that Halliday's assailant merely escaped the wreck and made off in the dark.

No. The point that strikes me, and struck Halliday when I told him is the intimate knowledge of that location shown, and the quickness with which he took advantage of it.

Crossing the road, according to the reporter, and about fifteen feet from where the car was ditched, is a small culvert. Hardly a culvert, either, but a largish clay pipe designed to carry the drainage of the higher fields on one side to the lower on the other.

"Have you searched this pipe?" I asked.

"I looked in. If I'd had a pair of overalls I'd have gone in. But as the only clothes I have with me are on me—" he smiled again. "It's a good job for a ferret," he said.

He gave me up reluctantly, at last, and prepared to go.

"So you think it's only an ordinary case of holdup?" he asked.

"I think it's a d—d unpleasant case of holdup," I replied, and he went away. But I have been thinking of his phrase since his departure.

How much of the present world disorganization lies in that very use of the word "ordinary!" Time was when no holdup was ordinary, and an act of physical violence or a murder caused a shock that swept us all. It is true, then, that one cannot turn the minds of a people to killing, as in the recent war, and then expect them at once, when the crisis is over, to regard life as precious? And is this the reason Greenough spoke of its being a "queer time in the world?"

For the rest of this afternoon, I have made my will! "To my dearly beloved wife, Jane Porter, I bequeath, etc."

There is something strangely comforting in making a will; it is as if one has completed the last rites, and now, with such complacence as may be, faces whatever is to come. Like Ishmael in "Moby Dick," I survive myself; my death and burial are locked up in my desk. I am "like a quiet ghost with a clear conscience, sitting inside the bars of a snug family vault."

A ghost, too, I begin to feel, among other ghosts. . . .

Ignore it as I will, there is a certain weight in the slowly accumulating mass of evidence at my disposal, a weight and a consistency which have commenced to influence me. I am bound to admit that, if I were able to conceive of the survival of intelligence beyond death, I could also conceive that poor old Horace has been on hand during some of our recent experiences.

Not Thomas' "George," the spirit evoked by Mrs. Riggs and still surviving in the lamp; not some malicious demon, frightening honest folk by ringing bells and pinching women in the dark. But a mind like my own, only greater in its wider knowledge, and painfully trying in its bodiless state to communicate that knowledge to me.

The sum total of evidence is rather startling.

(a) Jane's photograph, taken on class day.

(b) Jock's refusal to enter the main house, persisted in to this time.

(c) My own curious telepathic message, relative to the letter.

(d) Jane's experience under the red lamp in the pantry. (Doubtful.)

(e) Halliday's lights over the marsh. (Again doubtful. It may have been the unknown, finding the boathouse occupied and seeking a way to the beach.)

(f) My own experience in hearing Uncle Horace's peculiar cough and smelling the odor of his asthmatic pastilles, or cigarettes.

(g) Jock's peculiar conduct at the same time.

(h) Peter Geiss' vision on the sloop, and his identification of it. (Yet Peter is a staunch supporter of "George." Had he been looking for such a visitation would he not naturally have seen George?)

(i) And the fact that this vision corresponds in time with the attack on Halliday.

In this attempt to refresh my memory I have not included Jane's premonition the night Carroway was murdered, or her dislike and distrust of the house. Nor have I included the vague stories of haunting told by Mrs. Livingstone, Annie Cochran or Thomas. Of the latter, they are not only beyond my personal experience or contact, but they are, if the word may be used in such a connection, apparently without motive.

July 17.

I do not like young Gordon. He has little enough time to himself—only, I gather, an hour or so after luncheon, while Mr. Bethel sleeps—but he spends that here, if possible.

Edith snubs him, but he is as thick-skinned as one of the porpoises which rolls itself in the bay.

"Why, if you're so clever," I overheard her today, "don't you go out and do something? Use your brains."

"It takes brains to do what I'm doing," he said, "and don't you forget it."

But as to what he is doing he is discreetly silent. There is a book under way, but he parries any attempt to discuss it. Also, he seems to delight in investing Mr. Bethel with a considerable amount of mystery.

"The boss is having one of his fits today," he will say.

"What sort of fits?"

"That would be telling," he says craftily, and ostentatiously changes the subject.

Edith, who has a very feminine curiosity, has questioned Annie Cochran but without much result. The "fit" days, so far as we can make out, are merely days when the invalid is less well than others, and mostly keeps his bed. Annie Cochran, however, has her own explanation of them; she believes that those days follow nights when "George" has been particularly active, and when presumably Mr. Bethel has not been sleeping on his good ear.

And as proof of this, she produces the fact that twice now, having left her tea-kettle empty on top of the stove, she has found it full in the morning. As Mr. Bethel cannot get downstairs unassisted, and as the secretary has always stoutly maintained that he has not left his room all night, Annie Cochran falls back on "George"; and, one must admit, not without reason. . . .

Poor Carroway was laid away yesterday, after the largest funeral in the history of these parts. And so ends one chapter in our drama. Ends, that is, for him. What is to come after no one can say.

One thing has tended somewhat to relieve the local strain. No sheep have been killed for eighteen days, and the altar in the field still remains without oblation. There are, I believe, one or two summer people who still make it the objective of an early morning excursion, hoping to find on it who knows what horrid sacrifice. But they have only their walk for their pains.

Maggie Morrison, who passes it every morning in her truck, makes a daily report of it to Clara, and so it filters to the family.

It is Maggie, too, who brings us much of our local news. Today, for instance, she informs us that the detective has gone away, "bag and baggage," from the hotel, and probably this accounts for the lighter tone of this entry. I am reprieved, at least until some other sheep are killed. . . .

Later: Halliday and I, late this afternoon, made an examination of the culvert, or pipe, in which our unknown hid after the accident. We must have presented a curious study for any observer, working with guilty haste, and I in particular emerging from the pipe covered with mud and a heterogeneous collection of leaves and grasses. Not only was Halliday too broad in the shoulders for easy access, but his injury forbade the necessary gymnastics. There was a time when, half in and half out of the pipe, I could hear him laughing consumedly.

But I found nothing, save that undoubtedly some one had preceded me into it. A man skilled in such matters might have read a story into the various marks and depressions, but they where not for me.

The net result of the search was not encouraging. True, Halliday picked up, outside the pipe, half of the lens of an eye-glass, bu there is no proof that it belonged to his assailant. On the other hand, I myself had made a discovery of a certain amount of importance. Halliday had said that the man he had picked up had seemed to be a heavy man, broadly and squarely built.

But my experience showed me that no very heavy man could have entered the pipe. We have, in effect, to recast our picture of the murderer; a man of medium size, we will say, compactly if muscularly built.

Tonight, sitting down to make this entry, I have missed my fountain pen, and as it has my initials on it we must recover it tomorrow if possible. It would be extremely unpleasant under the circumstances for Starr, for instance, in a burst of zeal to find it in the pipe.

True, Peter Geiss could swear that, at the moment Halliday was attacked he and I were looking for a ghost in the fore-rigging of the sloop. But I am at this disadvantage, that they give me no opportunity to defend myself, for they make no accusation. Their method is that damnable one of watchful waiting; Greenough's psychological idea that, given enough rope, a criminal will hang himself.

July 18.

Edith and Halliday went this morning to recover my fountain pen, Edith in spite of our protests determined to crawl into the pipe for it. To this end she put on my mechanic's overall in which I oil and grease my car, and very sweet indeed she looked in it.

But the pen was not there. She found the cap of it, embedded in the mud, but not the pen itself. It looks as though Starr has lost no time!

Edith, I believe, suspects something. There is a growing gravity and maturity in her; she tries to show me, by small caresses and attentions, that she believes in me and loves me. But she knows that there is something wrong.

And she has, I think, quarreled with Halliday. There was nothing on the surface to show it, on their return today, but he declined her invitation to luncheon and went off, whistling rather ostentatiously, to his bacon and beans at the boat-house. This afternoon, while Mr. Bethel slept, she accepted young Gordon's invitation to go canoeing, and had the audacity to take the canoe, so to speak, from under poor Halliday's nose. According to Jane, she needs a good shaking.

Votive Offerings in Gratitude to Saints

Votive offerings are still a popular way of expressing gratitude, as the exhibition at Naples shows. The ancients and the early Christians made use of this custom, not only in sign of thanksgiving, but as a preventative measure, Pierre Van Paassen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. In cases of illness they would make haste to deposit a model of the injured limb or organ in the church in full faith of obtaining a cure. As time went on the church forbade this as savoring of magic, and only officially admits to the altar thank offerings for grace received. Yet to this day, in the neighborhood of Naples, mothers weigh their children and offer the same amount of wax to the virgin or their patron saint to keep the little ones from dwindling away. In southern Italy plague, pestilence and famine, battle, murder and sudden death, tempests, earthquakes and thunderbolts are all, in popular belief, under control of some one special saint who has power to relieve sufferers from their evil influences. Thus St. Nicholas and St. Anthony protect the cattle; St. Paul cures snake bite; St. Ercolano strengthens the legs; St. Donino cures hydrophobia; St. Catherine, St. Raphael and St. Pasquale are fervently invoked when girls want husbands.

Archeological Find

Removing a stone to widen the entrance to one of his fields, a man of Holestone, County Antrim, Ireland, discovered that it formed the entrance to an underground dwelling. The dwelling consists of two chambers, with a passage leading to a third, or possibly more chambers. This passage is blocked. It is believed these underground dwellings were constructed about the Fourth century, A. D.

Divorce Possibilities

Having passed five years of married life together, the chances of a couple remaining together the remainder of their lives is about 70 per cent. After the fifth anniversary of their union they will more than likely stay married till after fifteen to twenty years. If they go over twenty years they have a 99 per cent possibility of staying out of the divorce court.

Sense of Humor Defined

"As I understand the phrase," said Adam, "sense of humor is the ability not to show that you think a thing is funny. It is to the inner man what laughter is to the outside. If, instead of laughing at you, I reflect on your condition and enjoy myself in silence, then I have a sense of humor."—From "Adam and Eve," by John Erskine.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks, Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. REAR SEAT DRIVING UPHELD BY COURTS

There is at least one time when a person riding beside the driver of an automobile or in the rear seat may indulge without criticism in "rear seat driving" and his right to do so has been upheld by many law courts in the United States.

The courts in several eastern states have held that it is the duty of a gratuitous guest in an automobile to warn the driver against dangers on the right or left or ahead. If the guest neglects to do so the courts have declared that such guest is precluded from collecting damages from the driver because of his own contributory negligence. In a recent case a court has held:

"It is the duty of an automobile passenger who, in the exercise of such due due and ordinary care as would be exercised by a reasonably prudent and cautious man, sees or should see that the driver is negligent, to warn, caution, or attempt to persuade him from his negligent conduct, if a reasonably prudent and cautious man in the exercise of such care would have done so under the same circumstances, and a passenger or guest who, in the exercise of ordinary care, for his own safety, observes that the driver is going at an excessive speed, or that he is not obeying the law of the road or traffic regulations, and who fails to protest against, or prevent such methods of driving, may be guilty of negligence precluding recovery against a third person for injuries from a traffic accident."

It has also been held by other courts that a policeman off duty and riding in an automobile as a guest was guilty of contributory negligence in remaining silent and permitting an automobile driver to drive at an unlawful rate of speed. He was denied damages against the driver for personal injuries received when a collision occurred.

"THE BEGGAR'S OPERA" COMES TO CURRAN THEATRE, JAN. 21

The first of all the musical comedies ever presented in the English language, "The Beggar's Opera," comes to the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, for two weeks commencing Monday, January 21. Important in connection with this engagement will be the first presentation here of "Polly," the sequel to "The Beggar's Opera," of which special matinees will be given on Saturday of each week.

"The Beggar's Opera" was written by John Gay and produced by John Rich in 1728 and had the then unprecedented run of sixty performances. It deals in satirical manner with the alliance that then existed between those high in the service of the king and the criminal class. It at first shocked London but remained to amuse it.

On the musical side of the opera its score is comprised of more than sixty airs selected from among the many tuneful English, Irish and Scotch folk songs to which Frederick Austin has given a new arrangement. The cast is the same that has appeared in the Gay opera in all four of its American tours.

An important adjunct to this organization is the symphony orchestra which furnishes the background for the dancers and singers.

A little Virginia girl, evidently warned not to ride with strange men, declined an invitation to accept a "lift" by a gentleman in a fine car a few days ago. The gentleman was President Coolidge.

BIGGER AND BIGGER

Great combinations and industrial mergers which would have scared the trust-busters of twenty-five years ago to death, are now being consummated with the tacit approval of the public. In fact, the government is giving active aid to some of these consolidations, for example that of certain railroad systems.

Secretary of Labor Davis suggests that a consolidation of coal producing companies into larger groups might be a good thing for that industry.

Consolidation of separately owned and operated cotton mills into larger units was recommended by President Walker D. Hines of the Cotton Textile Institute in a recent address.

A trend toward group management of farms was predicted by President Samuel H. Thompson of the American Farm Bureau Federation at the annual meeting of that body in Chicago.

Great combinations in the automobile, radio-amusement, electric, banking, merchandising and other fields are of almost daily occurrence.

Whether the ultimate result of all this shall be for good or evil remains to be seen, but there is no doubt that the trend of modern business and industry is in the direction of larger units. What will be the effect upon small business concerns of the country is a question which is giving those interested considerable uneasiness. One thing seems certain, and that is that the smaller independent merchants and business men generally must adopt improved methods, a sane and continuous advertising program, and in some cases pool their purchasing power, in order to buy their goods on terms which will enable them to compete with the big organizations.

This is a day of big enterprises, and they are getting bigger and bigger every day.

ECONOMIC CONDITION MOST SATISFACTORY

Economic conditions in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district during the closing months of 1928 have reflected those developments which characterized the year as a whole, says Isaac B Newton, chairman of the board and Federal Reserve agent.

Sales of goods at wholesale and at retail have been large both in volume and value. Agricultural output has increased but prices of agricultural products have tended downward during the marketing season. Prices of non-agricultural commodities have averaged above the prices of last year. A substantial amount of credit has been available at but slightly higher interest rates than prevailed during 1927.

Crop estimates made December 1 indicate that, in the aggregate, production of field, grain, and fruit crops during 1928 were larger than during 1927. During the current marketing season, and particularly toward the close, prices paid for these crops have not compared favorably with prices paid in 1927. It appears probable that the total returns to the district's farmers will not exceed those of last year. Livestock producers have been moderately heavy sellers of cattle and heavy sellers of sheep at prices which have averaged higher than a year ago.

Industrial output in the district experienced a seasonal decline during November, but employment of other than unskilled labor continued at levels higher than a year ago. Trade at retail declined moderately during the month, but total sales both at reail and at wholesale were larger during the first eleven months of 1928 than during the same period of 1927.

Prices generally tended upward during the second and third quarters of 1928, but declined during the fourth quarter, and toward the year's close the Bureau of Labor Statistics' index of wholesale commodity prices receded to levels approximating those of November, 1927. The decline in recent months has been a reflection chiefly of lower prices for agricultural products, prices of certain non-agricultural commodities important in this district, notably copper, lumber, and petroleum, now being higher than a year ago.

Reduced demand for credit at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, and increased loans and investments by member banks characterized the credit situation in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district during late November and early December. The amount of Reserve Bank and member bank credit in use during this period, however, was considerably greater than a year ago.

THE CASH VALUE OF LIVES

Sixty-two million Americans placed a value on their lives!

Some have done it not knowing fully what they did and have placed so low a valuation as to make replacements absurd. Others have gone at it deliberately and carefully, studying their work, their businesses, their income and the damage which would be wrought to their plans, and the losses which would occur to their families by their death.

The result is that sixty-two million people have insurance on their lives amounting to eighty-seven billions of dollars. A recent survey shows the sum will rise to one hundred billion dollars in 1929.

During the year 1927, seventeen billions of dollars of new insurance was taken and the year 1928 will break all records. The premiums paid to life insurance companies for carrying this enormous responsibility, in 1927 amounted to nearly five billion dollars, and the other income of these companies from investments made and held by them for the protection of these policyholders amounted to almost as much again.

In a vague sort of way it has been felt for a long time that human capital was the nation's greatest asset. But it has been difficult to estimate how great this capital is. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has made a study of the men workers and through computations made by their statisticians they have arrived at the value of men based upon their earning power and according to their expectation of life.

For instance, these scientists say that at 30 a man earning $2,500 a year is worth in terms of human capital $48,562. This man has an expectation of life of 36.87 years, which means that the average man of his group and kind will live nearly 37 years longer. He will earn around $69,000 during the remainder of his life, and after deducting his future personal expenses and the commuted value of his earnings his present replacement worth is $48,562.

Some interesting figures have also been computed as to the value of the life of a boy from one year of age to 18, when he becomes self-supporting. At birth that boy's life is worth $9,333 and this value goes up in an ascending scale until at 18 the human capital value of his life is $28,654.

The cost of rearing a child from birth to 18 will total $7,238. The cost of being born amounts to $250, while food, clothing and shelter during the period amounts to nearly $6,000 more. And these figures include the cost of education—by charging into shelter the taxes which we pay either as owners or tenants and which go into the community cost of education.

Women have been estimated to have a human capital value of half that of men—not because they are women, but because fewer women are productive workers than men. If we take the capital value of the entire population of the United States on this basis, the total human capital value is the almost inconceivable sum of 1,500 billions of dollars.

Now, when we see that there is only eighty-seven billions of dollars of life insurance in force, is is evident that most men have set a human capital value on their lives far below what it ought to be, and that millions of American citizens have placed no replacement value on themselves.—Hary L. Pace in Forbes Magazine.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

When President Coolidge and King Alfonso exchanged greetings by Trans-Atlantic telephone, the Spanish monarch spoke in English.

Philadelphia's first telephone exchange was established in November, 1878. In November, 1928, just fifty years later, there were 370,314 Bell telephones in operation in the city.

A trans-Atlantic telephone conversation the other day resulted in the sale of 100 motorboats by a Michigan concern, representing money valued at approximately one-half million dollars.

In 1889 the city of Los Angeles had just 1,000 telephones. The 100,00th mark was not reached until 1913. The other day Los Angeles' 350,000th telephone instrument was installed.

A modern telephone exchange, the first ever installed in the northwestern part of Africa, has been placed in service in the city of Ceuta, which is now connected with the telephone system of Spain and thus with England, France, the United States and other countries.

BOUGHT 'ALICE' BY TELEPHONE

The sale of the manuscript of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" to Dr. A. S. Rosenbach of Philadelphia was made by the trans-Atlantic radio telephone. It was purchased at what is said to have been the largest price ever paid for an author's original manuscript, and was bought at an auction in London.

"HER CARDBOARD LOVER" COMES TO GEARY THEATRE STAGE IN SAN FRANCISCO

"Her Cardboard Lover," the spicy Parisian comedy, has been booked for the next attraction on the Geary stage to follow Nance O'Neil in "The Silver Cord," Monday, January 21.

Adapted from the record-breaking French hit by P. G. Wodehouse and Valerie Wyngate, "Her Carboard Lover" received unstinted acclaim when introduced to American audiences with Jean Engles on Broadway last year.

The play deals with an attractive Parisienne who, having divorced her husband, decides she can never in the world resist his winning ways unless she has a counter-irritant. She has no desire to be his wife again, being well out of a considerable mess. It is just at this time she wins a large sum of money at baccaret from an engaging young man. He cannot pay her, so she agrees he can work off the indebtedness if he will pose as her lover—a cardboard lover, since the relationship means nothing whatsoever. He, an irresponsible adventurer fresh from college, accepts the position. In fact he does more than accept it, he proceeds to fill it in a very capable fashion. The results, obviously, are interesting, and Mr. Woodward has mounted an extravagant production for the piece.

Hazel Whitmore, talented actress who abandoned the debutante circles of society to go on the Broadway stage, has the principal feminine role. Anderson Lawler, another product of the Gotham theatre, and Carl Miller, remembered on the west coast as the leading man oposite Ruth Chatterton in "The Green Hat," have the two important male roles. Others in the company include James Durkin, Bernie Burnhahd, Edward Schilling, Francesca Rotili, Samuel Mullins and Frederick Pymm.
